Alcorn State University Engaging the Community on Safety

Project Abstract

Developing effective community outreach and engagement programs is difficult for the police because the programs absorb significant resources and may detract from other police priorities. Community policing programs require staffing and specialized training, a benefit that the target area does not enjoy due to limited resources. Preventing radicalism, while a pressing national issue, is not a top priority for police in Southwest, MS that must address violent crime, drugs, gangs, and a host of other public safety concerns. Alcorn State University is proposing the Community Radicalization to Violence Training program to address the growing violence in our region and in our nation with domestic terrorism and also race based violence. It is aimed to assist Alcorn State University and surrounding communities to combat threats and other societal harms that lead to groups coming together with the intent of causing harm to property or life. This project is necessary due to the growing threats that HBCUS have encountered since 2018. We anticipate that providing trainings of this nature will not only assist the University in addressing this growing concern, but also assist the surrounding counties with skills and knowledge to help fight violence within their communities.

Needs Assessment

Within Alcorn's mission statement is a charge to promote diversity, ethical action, and inventive solutions to local, regional, and national problems. This mission commits the Historically Black University (HBCU) to promoting the presence and ensuring the comfort, safety and wellbeing of its students and; also to being proactive in challenging systemic inadequacies that hinder community growth and development. These promising practices include deep leadership commitment to community engagement, broad based engagement efforts that span multiple communities, ensuring that police forces are trained in outreach techniques and cultural competency, hiring a diverse police force, using outreach to address the core needs of the community, and finding ways to divert individuals away from the criminal justice system when possible by providing them the resources and assistance they need.

Many students and residents that live around the Grand Gulf Nuclear Power Plant have never received training in the event of an attack or emergency. Alcorn State University is focusing on the Raising Societal Awareness track. This training will be provided to students and employees, law enforcement, community and faith based leaders, and volunteers to help reduce radicalization to violence. Currently there are no trainings of this nature being offered in this area. The University will use various DHS training programs and we plan to adopt the curriculum of the Law Enforcement Awareness Briefing that will be tailored to fit the needs of our region.

Definitions of violent extremism include references to radicalization and terrorism as part of locally understood extremist movements. An important point to understand is that radicalization is a dynamic process whereby an individual may adopt ever more extreme ideas and goals. The reasons behind the process can be ideological, political, religious, social, economic and/or personal. A radical person or group may seek to bring about a system-transforming radical solution for government and society through violent or non-violent means. Therefore, holding radical ideological, religious or political views is not in itself a problem, but the willingness to promote, support, facilitate or commit violence to achieve such goals is the problem we will address.

There are several phases in the radicalization process to take into consideration, such as activism, extremism, violent extremism and terrorism, each constituting different levels of growing radicalization. Presently, the targeted communities in this proposal has been having increased crime since COVID 19 because of the growing popularity of social networking sites, online video channels and chat rooms that have allowed extreme messages to be spread throughout our region and nation. This has been a particularly powerful recruitment tactic of radicalized individuals in the South and across the country.

Although there is no single profile or pathway to radicalization that may lead to violent extremism, there are certain socioeconomic, psychological and institutional “push” and “pull” factors that may lead to violent extremism. Examples of known push factors that may drive individuals to violent extremism include marginalization, inequality, discrimination and limited access to education and other services. Pull factors that foster the appeal of violent extremism include the existence of well-organized violent extremist groups “investing” in recruitment, for example by using online media and propaganda or offering services, revenue and/or employment in exchange for membership.

Known push and pull factors towards radicalization and violent extremism include the following:

- Limited access to education and employment
- Feeling unsafe or not valued in society
- Lack of protection or positive relationships with friends or family members
- Exposure to negative messages and recruitment tactics
- Not feeling accepted by family or social groups
- Youth feeling that they do not belong to their community
- Feelings of injustice or unfairness
 - A thrill and sense of excitement to feel part of something and important to a cause
- Young people may see extremist groups as an opportunity to “escape” tough realities at home

For police, controversial shootings and excessive force incidents have resulted in widespread protests that have highlighted tense relationships between the police and minority communities in many urban areas around the country. Unfortunately, this behavior is now spewing into smaller rural areas. To be proactive, the University believes this outreach in raising societal awareness is best method to combat violent radicalism.

Prior to Covid 19, the Southwest region of Mississippi had a population of 178k people with a median age of 39.6 and a median household income of $33,182. Between 2018 and 2019 the population of the Southwest region of MS declined from 178,628 to 177,562, a -0.597 percentage decrease and its median household income grew from $32,110 to $33,182, a 3.34% increase. The 5 largest ethnic groups in the Southwest Region, MS are Black or African American (Non-Hispanic) (49.9%), White (Non-Hispanic) (47.2%), White (Hispanic) (1.05%), Asian (Non-Hispanic) (0.396%), and Black or African American (Hispanic) (0.375%). These counties are below the median income level and have persistent high unemployment rates. A large percentage of the inhabitants are at or below the poverty level. (U.S. Census Bureau 2020)

The largest universities in this region are Alcorn State University (700+ degrees awarded in 2022) and Southwest Mississippi Community College (500+ degrees). The economy of Southwest, MS employs 59.4k people. The largest industries in the Southwest Region are Elementary & secondary schools (5,425 people), Construction (3,532 people), and Restaurants & Food Services (3,531 people), and the highest paying industries are Pipeline transportation ($122,276), Vocational rehabilitation services ($110,975), and Oil & gas extraction ($97,532).

Program Design

Radicalization is not a threat to society if it is not connected to violence or other unlawful acts. Alcorn State University's Community Training project strives to improve community resilience by training community members in appropriate skills identified through the Department of Homeland Security Law enforcement-training guide and through other best practices found in local and state law enforcement training. It is important to keep in mind that radicalization is influenced both by community preparedness prior to a disaster as well as community response during the stages of disaster management (natural or manmade disasters). Our proposal plans on developing skills that build on existing community knowledge while integrating skill sets such as community organizing skills and security assessments. Since knowledge about vulnerability, risk, hazards, and capacity differs significantly from community to community, our training design must be flexible enough to incorporate community knowledge and culture of disaster preparedness and community-organizing systems, while being structured enough to ensure critical skills are included at every stage of the training.

Moreover, to improve long-term sustainability of the program, the training curriculum will include training for both local trainers, law enforcement, and administrators. Ultimately, what we are developing is a proposal for the creation of multi-level community radicalization training designed to embed communities with skill sets that facilitate preparedness and empowerment during times of disaster. The framework of the training will include infrastructure, community organizing, and advocacy.

The curriculum design is broad based, address core concerns of the community, and can be applied to all communities. To gain the trust, and ultimately the cooperation and partnership of a community, Alcorn State University will demonstrate that we are public servants, who are here to provide safety and address as many community concerns as possible. To do this, Alcorn has built a trusting relationship with the people of Southwest MS over its 150-year history. Secondly, we have engaged these communities in outreach and other engagement programs that were consistent, participatory, creative, and personal. Third, as a State controlled institution we are a public entity and have maintained a high level of transparency. Because of these efforts, communities are more inclined to welcome the University ideas and be considered a partner in addressing public safety concerns without fear that we are collecting information about community members that is fed to intelligence officers and criminal investigators.

The police have limited resources and many public safety threats to address. They cannot be everywhere at all times. Genuine community engagement requires partnerships with multiple government agencies – the schools, public and mental health agencies, the parks, transportation, and other local government experts. The Community Radicalization to Violence Training (CRVT) program is a project designed to produce and implement a multi-level, community-based training program that enhances community resilience in the face of large-scale disruptions such as natural disasters, conflict, and severe economic downturns. CRVT training will provide vulnerable populations with sustainable technology protocols, community organization skills, and advocacy skills as well as facilitate the transfer of adaptive knowledge among vulnerable communities. In addition, the training program will include training for trainers and a university mentorship to facilitate community control of the final product.

To launch the CRVT, the University will approach the Grassroots Organizations, elected officials, and churches in Southwest, MS to develop partnerships. Specialization teams and consultants will be drawn from the CRVT project partner networks as well as the University's social networks.

The CRVT curriculum will start with an 8-hour introductory course that introduces the importance of skills that decrease radicalization to violence. Each of the trainings will build on the previous training to increase the overall capacity of the community while allowing community members to decide how much time they desire to commit to the CRVT program. The first level of each training will be a 16-hour course that provides a basic skill that empowers participants to engage in disaster and post-disaster community response, relief, and recovery activities under the direction of the trainers. (University personnel, legal, and law enforcement)

Trainings will be designed in 2-hour modules to facilitate flexibility in training schedules based on the needs of the population being served. In this way, trainings could be taught fulltime for a period of weeks or conducted on weekends and/or evenings over a longer period. To facilitate the inclusion of low-income participants all trainings are budgeted to include food and childcare. In addition, training materials will consist of images rather than written resources to facilitate the program accessibility in areas with low literacy rates. Throughout the participants will participate in scenarios and hands-on exercises designed to teach people to work together to apply their knowledge and skills. The CRVT curriculum teams will use Department of Homeland Security and established train the trainee manuals to teach participants best practice methods.

The framework of the trainings will be designed to incorporate local community knowledge and adapt to local culture. For the purposes of this project, local community knowledge also includes more recent information leading to successful adaptation and broadens the relationship from an understanding of resources to their relationship with the environment as a whole. Broad descriptions of the trainings are submitted in this document as teams of four to seven individuals will design each training, including goals, objectives, teaching approaches, specific skills, and level of organization. The assessment is designed to identify key holders of community adaptive knowledge, explore community strengths and weakness as well as community adaptive skills. To make the trainings as relevant as possible, the information will be integrated into all trainings by the training team with the oversight of the University Emergency Response Team.

Community Radicalization to Violence Training Objectives and Goals

GOAL 1

Build community capacity to adapt positively to adversity by providing needed skills and simple, creative solutions in the areas of infrastructure, health, hazard management, and community organizing.

GOAL 2

Create a curriculum capable of transferring traditional adaptive skills and knowledge to prevent community radicalization of violence.

GOAL 3

Improve community capacity in important development areas such as community conflict resolution.

- Objectives:
- (1) Prevent Terrorism and violent crimes
 - (2) Promote safe communities
 - (3) Equip communities with survival skills to combat radicalism
 - (4) Prioritize addressing public safety and other concerns of the community.
 - (5) Facilitate interactions between communities and federal government agencies.
 - (6) Engage all residents to address public safety matters.

Methods

Training courses can either be tailor-made for specific first-line responders (such as community police officers or mental health care workers) or designed for first-line staff in general. Duration varies, from a 2-hour Interactive workshop to a 3 to 5 day training course.

Most courses will include information on:

- Terminology: what is radicalization, (violent) extremism, terrorism
- The range of extremist groups and movements: extremist right-wing, extremist left-wing, extremist religiously inspired.
- Basic knowledge of extremist ideologies:
 - What is the ideal society projected by violent extremists
 - What are they fighting for
 - Who are their enemies/scapegoats
- What are the differences between an extremist form of an ideology and a more moderate, mainstream version.
- When does an ideology become more than a critical point of view on society and legitimize the use of violence.
- The radicalization process and various trajectories: understanding radicalization as a unique and gradual process, emphasizing there is no such thing as a common profile, one root cause or usual pathway. A breeding ground for radicalization can result from combination of pull factors and push factors.
- Indicators – how to identify vulnerable people at risk of radicalization, considering that there are no clear-cut and definitive ‘radicalization checklists’. Identification instead involves observing changing attitudes and relationships, grievances and obsessions.
- Responding to (possible) radicalization: understanding that preventing further radicalization is much wiser than trying to De radicalize an extremist. Thus, begin a conversation with the individual and involve other professionals or credible persons and share concerns and other information, while carrying out further monitoring or contacting law enforcement.

This outreach project into community needs will utilize focus groups and training activities that focus on the following:

- Training for first line responders: raising awareness of first line responders working with vulnerable individuals or groups at risk of radicalization.
- Exit strategies: de-radicalization programs to re-integrate violent extremists and disengagement programs to at least dissuade them from violence.
- Community engagement and empowerment: engagement and empowerment of communities at risk, establishing a trust based relation with authorities.
- Educating young people: education of young people on citizenship, political, religious and ethnic tolerance, non-prejudiced thinking, extremism, democratic values, cultural diversity, and the historical consequences of ethnically and politically motivated violence.

- Family support: for those vulnerable to radicalization and those who have become radicalized.
- Delivering alternative narratives: offering alternatives to extremist propaganda and worldviews either online or offline.
- Multi-agency structures: institutional infrastructures to ensure that people at risk are given multi-agency support at an early stage.

First-line responders who can make an important contribution include teachers, youth workers, community police officers, child protection workers and (mental) health care workers. In contrast to policy-makers, for example, first-line responders are able to – potentially – recognize and refer individuals who may be vulnerable or who are showing signs of actual radicalization. However, they do not always have a sufficient understanding of processes of radicalization, are not able to assess the warning signs, or do not know the best way to respond.

Aims

The training courses aim to:

- raise awareness and understanding of the process of radicalization in general and in specific contexts;
- help responders recognize some of the signs displayed by vulnerable individuals at risk;
- empower first-line public sector workers with the tools and instruments they need to respond appropriately;
- encourage a culture of sharing both clear and more implicit concerns among a team of colleagues regarding a person or a group that show worrisome signs of radicalization;
- facilitate and empower multi-agency partnerships and early intervention to safeguard and divert people away from the risks of being radicalized or recruited.

CP3 Implementation & Measurement Plan

You should modify the Implementation & Measurement Plan (IMP) template to match the number of goals your specific project requires. For each goal in the IMP, create an Implementation Plan table and a Measurement Plan table. Please use the definitions provided in the IMP guidance document when crafting your plan. Draft, in the box below, the overarching goal statement for the project. Following completion of the IMP, each grantee is expected to complete the Risk Assessment & Mitigation Plan in Appendix A. Please note that select grantees will undergo an independent outcome evaluation that will specifically seek to determine the impact of a program and whether it was able to achieve its stated goals and objectives as measured against its stated performance measures/indicators. It is therefore critical that this plan is completed as comprehensively as possible to enable this type of evaluation to be possible.

In the Implementation Plan table:

- After reviewing the example table, please delete the “Example Goal 1 Implementation Plan” and fill in your project plan within the blank Implementation Plan table further down within this template. For additional guidance, definitions, and examples, please consult the “IMP Guidance Document”
- Type each activity in a separate row; add as many rows as needed.
- Arrange activity rows chronologically by the start date of the activity.
- The plan should span both years of performance under this grant program.

In the Measurement Plan table:

- After reviewing the example table, please delete the “Example Goal 1 Measurement Plan” and fill in your project plan within the blank Measurement Plan table further down within this template. For additional guidance, definitions, and examples, please consult the “IMP Guidance Document”
- Type each performance measure in a separate row. Every key activity in your implementation plan table such as trainings, workshops, or case management activities should have at least one corresponding performance measure and target within the measurement table
- Map each performance measure to the relevant activity by including the numerical code of the activity to which it applies, e.g., 1.1.1, 1.1.2, etc.
- Include performance measures and targets that will measure the results of the relevant activity in line with that activity’s corresponding goal and objective. It is not necessary to have more than one performance measure and corresponding target for an individual activity if one is sufficient to measure the successful implementation of that activity.
- Identify and/or design data collection methods to be used to obtain the data that will be reported on quarterly.
- Ensure attention to collection of data that can be broken down by sex and age of project participants or beneficiaries.
- The information in the “Performance Measures” column of the Measurement Plan should align with the information in the “Anticipated Outputs” column of your Implementation Plan

NOTE: Data collection methods should be specific and timebound. Any expenses incurred from the collection of data must come from the grant already awarded. No additional funds will be made available by DHS for this purpose.

[REPEAT FOR AS MANY GOALS AS NEEDED FOR PROJECT]

APPENDIX A: RISK MANAGEMENT PLAN

The following risk assessment chart is designed to assist in the identification of potential occurrences that would impact achieving project objectives, primarily those originating externally and that are outside of the organization's control. Risks could include, but are not limited to: economic, social, or political changes; changes to planned partnerships; legal or compliance changes; or other risks unique to this project. Use the chart below to identify these risks; add additional rows if necessary.

Risk Identified	Risk Analysis (brief assessment of the impact the identified risk could/would have on the project)	Risk Management Plan (plan to minimize the impact that the risk presents to the project and adjustments to be made if the risk transpires)
COVID-19 variants could cause in-person trainings to be unsafe and not possible	In-person training is the preferred modality as it is more engaging than virtual alternatives. A virtual training could result in decreased enthusiasm for registration and decreased engagement of attendees	Program will conduct trainings virtually if in-person trainings are not possible. Trainers will be trained on online engagement strategies in order to better keep audience engaged within online modality.

SECTION III: GENERAL

A. LIMITATIONS:

The rates in this Agreement are subject to any statutory or administrative limitations and apply to a given grant, contract or other agreement only to the extent that funds are available. Acceptance of the rates is subject to the following conditions: (1) Only costs incurred by the organization were included in its facilities and administrative cost pools as finally accepted; such costs are legal obligations of the organization and are allowable under the governing cost principles; (2) The same costs that have been treated as facilities and administrative costs are not claimed as direct costs; (3) Similar types of costs have been accorded consistent accounting treatment; and (4) The information provided by the organization which was used to establish the rates is not later found to be materially incomplete or inaccurate by the Federal Government. In such situations the rate(s) would be subject to renegotiation at the discretion of the Federal Government.

B. ACCOUNTING CHANGES:

This Agreement is based on the accounting system purported by the organization to be in effect during the Agreement period. Changes to the method of accounting for costs which affect the amount of reimbursement resulting from the use of this Agreement require prior approval of the authorized representative of the cognizant agency. Such changes include, but are not limited to, changes in the charging of a particular type of cost from facilities and administrative to direct. Failure to obtain approval may result in cost disallowances.

C. FIXED RATES:

If a fixed rate is in this Agreement, it is based on an estimate of the costs for the period covered by the rate. When the actual costs for this period are determined, an adjustment will be made to a rate of a future year(s) to compensate for the difference between the costs used to establish the fixed rate and actual costs.

D. USE BY OTHER FEDERAL AGENCIES:

The rates in this Agreement were approved in accordance with the authority in Title 2 of the Code of Federal Regulations, Part 200 (2 CFR 200), and should be applied to grants, contracts and other agreements covered by 2 CFR 200, subject to any limitations in A above. The organization may provide copies of the Agreement to other Federal Agencies to give them early notification of the Agreement.

E. OTHER:

If any Federal contract, grant or other agreement is reimbursing facilities and administrative costs by a means other than the approved rate(s) in this Agreement, the organization should (1) credit such costs to the affected programs, and (2) apply the approved rate(s) to the appropriate base to identify the proper amount of facilities and administrative costs allocable to these programs.
